

Audition information. – Rosina Andrews Elite Summer School.

Whilst I don't want to seem elitist, this summer school was created especially is only for those dancers that are at the top of their game, and to push them further. It is something that no other (non-ballet specific) summer school offers.

The summer school over the past two years has been unique by bringing only the best of the best together. It is very different to my touring workshops, as dancers are expected to be able to do turns and leaps proficiently as well as pick up hard choreography. The week is intense and the standard of the dancers is particularly high, that is what makes it so inspiring for the students. Who are often quite lonely and used to being the best at their dance schools with less students to inspire to be and bounce energy off of.

The classes depend on a high standard of technique to eradicate injury and for dancers to gain the most they can from the classes, assessment from faculty members will be undertaken before places are confirmed.
